GRABHOLZ® – Oaken gravestone; first presentation at IPM 2012

Wood has been a well known and traditional material at cemeteries. For the very first time gravestones from oak are now shown at IPM 2012 in Essen. Branded as GRABHOLZ®, gravestones from oak represent nature, emotional warmth, sustainability and good design. More than 20 well designed models each in different sizes and in combination with glass or stone plus several letterings provide each GRABHOLZ® a unique.

Cemetery gardeners can use GRABHOLZ® as natural, modest and elegant completion for their floral grave creations and to complete their own business offer. Cemetery management will appreciate the inherent design potential for public grave arrangements. And as sculpture GRABHOLZ® products may convince also gardeners and garden architects.

GRABHOLZ® uses oak only from sustainable managed European forestry. High content of tannins and a special kind of surface treatment provide durability for many years. Warm oak colour and even dark hue underlines the natural character of material that accompanies man also during live time.
